LUMINARI glass is a collection of decorative interior products made of glass layered with different materials.

The project is a collaboration between the design studio S'39 and the glass manufacturer Rákósy Glass after many years of partnership. S'39 is a designer collective established in 2006, dealing with artistic and design approaches that question the way we perceive the world around. Their design practice is unmistakable by their brave yet playful use of materials, techniques and ideas. Rákósy Glass is a family business established in 1981, mainly dealing with customized architectural glass production.

LUMINARI is a unique decoration made of quality materials. Decades of professional experience gives the background for this experimental way of production, where unexpected combinations of materials come alive in daring patterns. The design is created with deep knowledge on technologies and materials, and pushing these boundaries give a twist to the traditional use.
